MISS MARX HAS SERIOUS COLLAPSE

Overwork on Health Exhibit Cause—Work at School Building Continues

Miss Wilhelmine Marx, public health nurse, has suffered a physical collapse and is unable to be at the school building this morning to direct the work at the health exhibit and the baby contest. She is suffering greatly, according to reports. Her condition has been brought about by overwork preparing for the health exhibit.

The exhibit and examination of children is going on today. A large corps of local women have lent their services and W. S. Anderson, president of the Red Cross, is in charge of the work. Dr. T. H. Curd was the only physician helping early this morning but others were prepared to help out on the examination of children this afternoon.

Everyone who visits the exhibit is enthusiastic about the displays and the work that has been put into them. It is one of the most complete and educational displays that could be conceived and great credit is certainly due to Miss Marx and her assistants in the work. Local women have been very generous in lending their services. The large offerings of flowers from Middlesboro gardens show the interest being shown in the work.

STOCK COMPANY COMING

Mr. Grover had letters from mayors of several cities extolling the merits of the show.

K. U. ICE PLANT NEARS COMPLETION

Plans to Make Fourth of July Ice At New Plant—Work On Pipes Almost Finished

Ice will be made for the Fourth of July by the new plant of the Kentucky Utilities company, according to W. C. Stair, local manager of the company. The plant is now beginning to assume the appearance of an ice factory, the pipe work which has been one of the biggest jobs is nearly completed and present indications are that the actual making of ice will begin by July 1, insuring a supply for Fourth of July lemonade.

Nearly half a mile of pipes has been installed in the great vat in which the ice will be frozen. These run horizontally in rows through the huge reservoir. Ammonia, circulating through the pipes, will freeze the ice in the cans which are placed between the pipe rows. Each can will hold a 300-pound block of ice. The plant will have a capacity of fifty tons of ice daily and this production can be augmented with little expense.

Large ammonia pumps and huge motors by which this and the other machinery will be driven have already been installed. An electrically driven crane, with a lifting power of four blocks of ice, has been placed on a track over the ice-making tank.

The cooling tower, another almost interminable mass of pipes surmounted by closely packed tiers of wooden troughs, has been erected outside near the northeast part of the building. Water drains from a large trough at the top and becomes cooled in falling from one small trough to another onto the pipes, cooling the ammonia that is circulating through them.

The plant will be entirely electrically driven. A large switch will be installed in the plant from which not only the plant machinery but also the lighting and power system of the city will be controlled. A storage room having an immense capacity has been built at the south side of the plant. Ice will be loaded into wagons for delivery and sold to retail buyers who come off it through the door at the end.

Efforts are being made to complete the work on the ice making equipment, this job taking precedence over work on the building. The pipe work in the ice vat will be finished this week. Later a concrete floor will be made and other parts of the building finished.

The K. U. Company has recently bought and put into operation a mammoth truck, perhaps the largest commercial vehicle in the city. It is an Armleder five-ton truck and is used for the delivery of ice.

DISCUSS RAILROAD THROUGH MOUNTAIN

Contest Between Southern and L. and N. For Supremacy Shown In Petition

The Southern line through Black Mountain, near Harlan, petitioned by Harlan County coal operators before the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday, is causing much discussion in this section. The following report of the petition is from a Harlan dispatch:

"The proposed road is to be only twelve miles long but a connection between the L. & N. on the Kentucky side and the Southern on the Virginia side of the mountains, it is argued, would give a direct route to Norfolk and loop off eighteen hours from the time now required for coal shipments. Backers of the project say that it would be a boon to the coal region lying around Harlan.

"Representatives of the Southern Railway company sought to show that their line would be able to take care of the increased tonnage which would be diverted by the connecting line. This was taken to indicate a contest between the L. & N. and the Southern, with the L. & N. fighting to retain its present dominant position in the Harlan section because of the lack of an outlet elsewhere.

"Representatives of Bristol and Appalachia, Va., testified that wholesale business in those and other towns would be stimulated by the proposed road which would open up the Harlan market to them.

"The twelve-mile stretch, however goes through the heart of the great bulk of Black Mountain. That is the reason the $3,000,000 outlay is necessary. Once before an effort was made to get approval of the plan but the Interstate Commerce Commission frowned upon it.

"One of the arguments used at the time was that a big coal development would result. That argument availed little because further development of the already over-developed coal industry proved no popular theme in Washington. Now, however, new and forceful arguments in behalf of the project are offered."

WEATHER AND CROP CONDI-TIONS IN STATE LAST WEEK

Theweek began warm but ended with temperatures somewhat below normal. The rainfall was heavy in all districts, ranging from 3.00 to nearly 5.00 inches over large areas in the western counties. Crops were damaged locally by washing and wheat was beaten down by the wind and heavy rain. Rain occurred on four days, interfering greatly with picking and marketing strawberries, and preventing much progress with putting up alfalfa hay. Strawberries in the field were also damaged by the wet weather. The rains were decidedly beneficial in the northeastern counties, where precipitation has been deficient for some time. Conditions were favorable for transplanting tobacco, which is well advanced in the dark district. In the burly section excellent progress was made but setting was delayed in some localities by scarcity and lateness of plants. Corn in the western counties and cotton in the extreme southwest, are becoming very weedy because of the continued wet weather. In the northeastern counties however, crops are well cultivated and are generally clean. Corn planting is practically completed in all parts of the State. Early corn is uneven on account of the extensive replanting necessary. In some localities where excessive rains occurred and there was much washing corn has been replanted twice. Its growth was satisfactory and its condition is fairly good. Wheat continued to make satisfactory progress and is generally in very good condition. The heads are comparatively heavy and are turning in color in the southern half of the State. The ripening process seems to be somewhat farther advanced in the blugrass region where there has been less rain and more sunshine. Potatoes, oats and gardens continued to improve. A considerable amount of blugrass seed was harvested, but rain at the end of the week stopped this work. In the northeastern district oats are somewhat short, although they look better since the rains. In other sections they are doing well and range in condition from fair to very good.

A THOUGHT

The sleep of a laboring man is sweet, whether he eat little or much; but the abundance of the rich will not suffer him to sleep.—Ecclesi 5:12.

EVERYONE for his home every one for himself.

MIDDLESBORO'S DEBT TO MISS WILHELMINE MARX

It is with pardonable pride that Mid-dlesboro points to the Health Exhibit being held in the Central school this week. Here is an array of displays, posters, and health lessons worked out in a manner that would do admirable credit to cities many times Middlesboro's size. And, in addition to this, thorough physical examinations are being given to nearly two hundred children.

The women of Middlesboro have lent their help to this exposition wholeheartedly, the children have worked untiringly, but through the whole thing directing and backing every detail in person, is Miss Wilhelmine Marx, local health nurse, to whom Middlesboro citizens can not show too much appreciation.

The work of Miss Marx in Middles-boro has been inestimable and we are willing to challenge any one to find a nurse who could have filled her place.
These health exhibits are but external manifestations of what she is doing and teaching. She came into Middles-boro at a time when health education and hygiene in schools was little regarded. In the face of opposition in nearly every field, she has gone quietly about her work, bringing about a change which is astounding if one takes the trouble to investigate it.

At the beginning of each term of school she has given a physical examination to every single pupil, keeping a record of their condition and cataloging the record for future reference.
She has vaccinated all who had not been before. She has taken definite steps to correct physical defects shown by the examinations. She has devoted her time during the school term to teaching hygiene and health lessons, and giving physical training instruction. Besides, she has taken the time, through her capacity as Red Cross nurse, to care for the sick and needy in the city, and she can always be depended on to be where she is needed when she is needed.

Most of Miss Marx' work has been done alone, without even the encouragement which she deserves from the public. Let us reflect on our debt, as a city and as individuals, to her unceasing work, pledging her our undivided support in the future and giving her our voiced appreciation when we meet her.

GOOD OLD SUMMER

WHAT is the best season of the year? Summer, to most people, though the other seasons, especially spring have their charms. And the older you get, the more you will like summer, the more you will dread winter.

For summer with its luxurious growth the is symbolic of life at its best.

Spring corresponds to our babyhood.
It is the sprouting season, full of hope,
dreams, uncertainty, danger of frost.

Autumn is like the waning years of life, when we harvest as we have sown, when we suffer for our negligence and mistake and are rewarded for our effort. Most of us, when we look backward in the autumn of life, say: "If I only my life to live over again."

Winter, of course, corresponds to human death, the hibernating of old

FRITZ OUGHT TO REDUCE A LITTLE

growth until new growth is ready to sprout and bud.

All three of these seasons are preparatory to or the aftermath of summer.
And summer is the period of life of accomplishment symbolic of the lives we are living. Lucky are who have survived the frosts of life's springtime.
Your crop of success is started. Toil and weed, for autumn of life will be upon you before you are aware. For results, it's now or never.

Do you know Baseball?

Questions

ONE—If a ball game is temporarily suspended because of rain and it conues to fall for more than 30 minutes, is the umpire obliged to call the game?

TWO—When two players going after a fly or ground ball collide and neither is able to make the play but both are seriously injured, when can the umpire suspend play to have the injured cared for?

THREE—With runner on first, batsman hits a fly ball to right field which the runner believes will be caught and he holds his base. The ball drops safe, but the right fielder forces the runner on first at second. Does the batter get a hit on such a play?

FOUR—If an infielder makes a perfect throw to first to get the batter, and has his arm, but not the first baseman dropped the ball, does the fielder making the throw get an assist?

Answers

ONE—That was once the rule but it has been changed, giving the umpire the right to wait any length of time before finally calling the game off or resuming play.

TWO—Time shall not be called until in the judgment of the umpire no further play is possible.

THREE—In no case shall a base hit be scored when a baserunner is forced out on the play.

FOUR—The infielder gets an assist even if another player fails on the put-out.

Kinks-o- the Links

In match play when a dispute arises over some question of rule, what is the proper manner to register a complaint and get a decision on the point in question?

If a dispute arises on any point, the player desiring to enter a protest must make a claim before going to the tee of the next hole, or if the dispute arises on the last hole, the claim must be made before leaving the last green. It is unlucky for all such claims to be laid before the committee in charge of the tournament immediately upon completion of the round.

If upon reaching the putting green you discover your ball is lying in casual water, has a player the right to lift the ball without penalty and drop it where the casual water will in no way interfere with the next stroke? Is it necessary to lift the ball in such a situation or can the player play the ball as it lies in casual water?

Player can play the ball as it lies or lift and replace it either behind the water, within two club lengths of where it lay, or in such a position, not nearer the hole, that you will have a line of put without interference from casual water. There is no penalty.

Ball strikes electric grass mower being used on the fairways, and so lodges in the mower that it is carried along. From where shall the player whose ball was carried away, play his next shot and is there any penalty connected with such a happening?

Player has the right to drop a ball without penalty at the spot where the ball met moving object and was carried along. It is usually an easy matter for the players to agree upon the spot where the ball should be dropped.

♦♦♦♦ By Berton Braley ♦♦♦♦

SAID the Doughboy to the God,
"I can't get it through my knob
Why we're heroes when the cannon start to sound;

But when peace and quiet comes
We are just 'a buncha huns,'
And the smart set will not let us stick around.

"I AIN'T jerry to the game;
Peace or war' we're just the same.
And they're both a part and parcel of our job;
Yet they cheer us when we fight
But when peace comes it's "Good night!
I don't get it," said the Doughboy to the God!

SAID the Gobby to the Doughboy,
"I don't think you'll ever know boy.
Why they hand us out the ice when peace is here.

It's a rotten deal, I'll say.
But it's always been that way
And I guess we'll have to stand it, that is clear!

"FOR the people will forget
That they owe us any debt,
And it ain't no use to nourish any love.

You're a Doughboy, I'm a Gob;
And—To hell with any snob Who's too good for us!" the Gobby told the Doughboy.

LETTER FROM PAULA PERIER,
"FORMER FLAME," TO JOHN
ALDEN PRESACOTT

MON BON AMOUR:

Je suis dans la peine.

I am in great trouble. I am all in soul and body and to turn I have nowhere but to you, mon am.

Why I cannot understand to me you sent flowers when your presence I asked, instead.

Oh, mon Jacques! That love me you do not I know. Is it that you have not even the friendship for me any more?

Remember do you not know that once you loved me? At least you told me so.
Remember do you not know that I have loved you always no one else and of that great love because I have I have out of your life gone rather than to mar
your happiness.

Surely from your hand I deserve a little I must see very soon. If not here at least I must see you at your home.

Letter From Sydney Carton to John Alden Prescott.

It looks to me, Jack, as though you are in it with both feet. I can't understand why you disregarded that advice which is as old as Time itself about being "all with the old love before you are on with the new."

Sometimes, old chap, I am almost of the opinion of that delightful person it was a woman I think who said, "The more I see of men the more I care for dogs."

We are a sorry lot old man, and it is only when we come a cropper that we begin to think that there is something in this world which makes for decency and duty.

Good Lord! To think that I, Sydney
Carton, have dropped into preaching.
But having preached I will not pass you by with supercilious advice. I will come up and stay with you three or four days, Jack, not particularly to help you out of anything because I think it would do you good to have to pay and pay well for your sins. I don't want Leslie to suffer, however.

Since you have married, Jack, your terrible example has made me think a little differently about marriage. Any woman is too good for any one of us and when a man persuades as sweet woman as true a woman and as good a woman as your wife to marry him he should be down in the dust kissing her "little feet and crying, "pescavi." Instead of sending her out of town while he fixes up a truce with a former love.

I am getting to dislike you very much John, because you are giving my moral sense a kind of itch which makes me want to play the Pharisee and thank God that I am not as other men. I tell my hypocritical heart I would probably have done just exactly the same thing that you have done had I ever met a girl as sweet as Leslie even while I am abusing you with heartfelt enthusiasm.

Expect me on the twentieth and remember one thing I shall stay until Leslie comes home. Too often have you sent for me since you were married and then insisted that I should not call upon your wife for fear that she would ask me some embarrassing question.

I am not going to lose her friendship even to save you from a bad quarter of an hour. In fact, as I feel this morning, I would not lose her regard to save your neck.

Put that in your pipe and smoke it.

WHERE THE ROADWAY ENDS

When you come to the end of the road of Life
And the years are trailing behind,
And you face the glow of the setting sun,
My friend, I am sure you'll find That it's not the gold you've garnered in heaps
That will happiness bring, so true—
But the friends you've made and the kind words said
That will ease and comfort you.
And it will not be the gems that you've bought,
Whose sparkle will make you smile,
Nor the mansion built of marble and stone,
Nor riches enjoyed the while,
But things you've done for others in need
And the gold you've given away.
That will make you smile and feel life worth while
When you stand at the close of Day.
When you come to the end of the road
of Life
And you stand at the Door of the great Unknown
And turn to tell the world goodbye—
You'll find that your gold is as worthless dust
And fame is a thing that soon ends
That all worth while is a good deed and smile
And a host of true, loving friends!

Fugate Parkey

Marriage Tuesday
A marriage of much interest to people in this vicinity took place Tuesday afternoon when Miss Bessie Parkey of Kaylor became the bride of Raymond P. Fugate of Gibson Station.
The marriage was performed at Cumberland Gap by the Rev. W. D. Farmer the two families. Immediately after the ceremony the newly married couple left on the Southern train for Knox-

daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Par-

Reception Last Night For

Dr. and Mrs. Douglas
The reception at the Presbyterian church last night for Dr. Rutherford E.
Douglas, new minister of that church, and Mrs. Douglas, was a particularly attractive event. Members and friends of the church were present in large numbers, each extending his welcome to Dr. and Mrs. Douglas who stood to receive in the front of the room. The church was beautifully decorated in red, white and blue, in honor of Flag Day. A flag was spread over the pulpit and several flags hung on the walls.

The altar was banked in crimson ramblers and festoons of this same flower decorated the walls of the Sunday school room. White roses, snowballs and iris, and blue delphinium and iris in baskets and vases at every conceivable position, finished the color scheme.
A short program consisted of a welcome from the congregation by C. A.
Blackburn and welcome from the presbytery by the Rev. C. L. Nisbet of Pineville, both of which were gracefully responded to by Dr. Douglas; a piano duet by Mrs. J. T. Alderson and Mrs. John Slomp; two vocal solos by Mrs. Florence Caton of Pineville and a vocal duet by Rev. and Mrs. Nisbet.
Mrs. W. S. Anderson, president of the Woman's Auxiliary, was in charge of the program. At the close of the evening, refreshments of brick ice cream and cake were served. A tiny flag, stuck in the top of each helping of ice cream, served as a souvenir.

TODAY'S RECIPES

PICNIC LUNCHES

PICNIC suppers are, for those who have automobiles, very different from the old-time ones.
The car can be packed with baskets and blankets, and many things taken which once would have been quite a burden.

For those who have elaborately fitted hamper, with every luxury the shops are showing, these suggestions for automobile picnics are of no use. But for anyone who has a car I would suggest a covered hamper which will fit in some place without taking too much space.
This hamper can be fitted with a few utensils, such as can opener, bottle opener, two or three knives, paper napkins, wooden plates, spoons and forks and these kept always in readiness for a hurried departure.
Solid alcohol stoves the two burner collapsible ones are very useful with several cans of the solid alcohol, will prove the easiest and best means for making tea, coffee or reheating food.
If the place chosen to serve the lunch be one where a wood fire can be built then one needs a long handled, two tined fork, a wire broiler, and a covered pail or coffee pot. Bread can be toasted by holding the pieces on the fork over the fire.

In the can containing coffee have a few egg shells; it will clear it, and excellent coffee is made with cold water and egg shells mixed with the coffee.
The powdered coffee is very good and requires but the addition of boiling water. It is best to use evaporated milk, which is easily carried, and can be opened when needed.

Canned soups such as cream of tomato, tomato, or clam chowder, require but a short time to make them very palatable. Always reheat them in an uncovered kettle, as that allows air to get to the thick soup, and with the addition of water takes the taste of the can away.

Rib chops boned and wrapped in pieces of bacon may be prepared at home, and be ready for the broiler

when the fire is started.
Potato chips are always good and if cake is desired, there are several makes sold in boxes for a small sum.
Salad and salad dressing can be carried in glass preserving jars as can also cut-up fruit for dessert.
With a little planning almost as good a meal can be served by the wayside or in a sheltered nook as one would serve at home. In addition to the fresh air, and the thought that "mother" can enjoy it without the heat of a stove and dishes to wash.

SULPHUR CLEARS A PIMPLY SKIN

Apply Sulphur as Told When Your Skin Breaks Out

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist. Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur and use it like cold cream.

Glass of Salts Cleans Kidneys

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grams of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and back-ache.

Pan-American Conference Fails To Accomplish Any Thing

By Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON, June 11—The Pan American Conference at Santiago, Chile recently, passed off very pleasantly.

Which means that it didn't accomplish anything.

It wouldn't have been so pleasant if the Latin American delegates had said what they thought.

Their newspapers are saying it now. According to "La Prensa" of Buenos Aires, leading Latin American daily, the most important proposition on the conference program was formation of a "League of American nations"; the second in importance was armament limitation.

The league was Uruguay's scheme. The North American delegates sensed that all the others were against it and sat on the suggestion before it had been more than barely mentioned.

The United States was back of the armament limitation plan.

Misinformed

In proposing it, says "La Prensa," the United States committed a mistake which was one more result of the lack of reliable information concerning events in this part of the American continent.

In fact, "La Prensa" asserts, the very advocacy, by the United States, of Argentine participations in a plan to limit the latter's military strength, at the same time that American officers are helping Brazil to strengthen her navy, must result in inflaming both these countries to encourage militarism and to endanger peace.

Argentina is the republic which resents Brazil's activities most, but the others don't like them either, and the Brazilians themselves recognize it.

"The whole South American press," says the important "Journal de Brazil,"

"has ranged itself unanimously against us. Even Uruguay, our traditional friend, has joined the current of hostility against Brazil."

Just Proposals

Lot of propositions were left in the hands of committees, to report at the next conference. Some of these propositions have North America backing, but the Latin American press has remarked again and again that very few of them get beyond the committee stage.

There's one, however, that probably will.

It provides for a plan by which all American countries will be represented at future conferences whether their governments have been recognized by the United States or not. Mexico, Peru and Bolivia were kept out of the last conference in this way.

The new plan was opposed by the representatives of only two countries at Santiago—the United States and Brazil. They'll be outvoted at the next conference, of course.

The whole trouble with the United States at these conferences, as the South American press sees it, is that she doesn't understand the Latin American temperament or Latin American interests and isn't informed concerning Latin American events, and she refuses positively to learn.

Greatest optimist on this earth is the man who buys his next winter's coal in this weather.

It doesn't matter, but Spaniards have lost 45 men at Tiziazaza, which sounds like a mosquito.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

Prohibition Reparations

The editorial writer who said the cork Al Smith popped was heard round the world spoke a mouthful, judging by the news from places pretty well all over, not only this country, but quite generally throughout Europe and even the Antipodes.

There isn't any question that America's experiment with prohibition has been most interestingly watched from many lands and press comment indicates that foreign observers, who aren't altogether familiar with this country's governmental system, incline to look at the immediate results from the New York governor's signature of the state dry repeal bill that can't possibly ensue unless and until the Volstead law is changed also.

Nevertheless wets and drys probably will agree that Smith has put in concrete form for the first time, the wet demand for amendment of the Volstead one-half of 1 per cent standard up to what the governor calls an honest common-sense dividing line between legal intoxicants and non-intoxicants.

Furthermore it appears to be the consensus of opinion that Smith has made the wet and dry issue one which will count, perhaps predominantly in the next national campaign whether the politicians like it or not.

Enforcement Slows Up

NEW YORK has withdrawn its state police border patrol against rum-smuggling from Canada.

Commissioner Dwight announces his decision to terminate prohibition enforcement duty by the New York City police.

The federal government is rushing dry enforcement agents to New York state from other parts of the country. The New York State Chamber of Commerce has adopted resolutions asking Congress for a national prohibition amendment on "reasonable, fair, just, practical lines."

The Chicago City Council by resolution has complimented Governor Smith of New York for signing the state prohibition repeal.

The Wisconsin House of Representatives has passed a state dry law repeal bill and sent it to the Senate.

Representative Britton, Illinois announces he will offer a bill when Congress meets authorizing light wine and beer taxing them to provide a soldier's home.

Must Obey Law

THE State Department has refused to confer with foreign governments relative to the Supreme Court's ruling that no ship may bring intoxicants, even for use solely on board when at sea, within America's three-mile limit. The government's view is that this is the law, so there's nothing to counter about.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, whose job includes enforcing prohibition on ship in port is understood to have made the rules as strict as he can hoping to force Congress to modify the law.

However the latest ruling is that ships doctors may keep in store such intoxicants as they deem necessary for medicine which may provide a way out of the difficulty.

Other Countries Growling

SPANISH ships, which depend largely on anti-Volstead commodities for their cargoes have canceled their stops at American ports.

France, Italy and Portugal whose laws like Spain's compel their ships to serve wine to their crews are protesting vigorously against the dry law's application to their vessels in American waters.

In Parliament in London a law is pending requiring ship within England three-mile limit to have intoxicants on board, this being proposed in retaliation for the American dry rule.

The British government is understood to have asked its Washington ambassador to report on the working of prohibition.

Switzerland, by a heavy popular majority, has turned down a proposal to nationalize liquor as a step toward prohibition.

Revolution in Bulgaria

BULGARIA'S peasant cabinet under Alexander Stambulsky has been overthrown and its members locked up the result of a revolution engineered by the military class.

Prof. Zankov succeeded Stambulsky's pledge fulfillment of Bulgaria's peace obligations and abstention from military adventures. He favors forcible recovery of territory Bulgaria lost in the Balkan and World wars.

The country may not accept the challenge quietly. Fighting is reported in many districts.

Too hot to worry about Europe. We haven't even learned the names of all the new soft drinks yet.

News from Belgium: Rail strike over there ended. May have been our annual rail strike they had.

Grandma--- Not 31

MRS. ERNEST RAYNER

SEATTLE June 13 Looks as young as one of this season's debutantes, but she has two bouncing grandchildren to her credit! Friends of Mrs. Ernest Rayner, here, claim for her the laurels of grand champion youngest grandmother of the country!

Six days before her 31st birthday, Mrs. Rayner welcomed her first grandchild, Claude Ruttenburg Jr. One year after that, the second grandchild came.

This record, friends maintain, better the mark of Mrs. Charles Bryan, who claimed the national "championship" when she was a grandmother at 31.

Mrs. Rayner's mother, Mrs. Alexander of Bremerton, Wash., is but 48 years old herself, and as granddaughters months ago, she must not be overlooked. "Early marriages are almost hereditary in our family," says the new champion. She married when 14. "I believe in them. But after all, the success in marriage rests with husband and wife. No, I don't feel any older for being a grandmother." Until a younger grandmother is found, Mrs. Rayner holds the title.

"Let 'em come!" she challenges.

BEGINNINGS OF KENTUCKY

By EARL S. GWIN

On December 7, 1770, the county of Kentucky was carved out of the county of Fincastle of Virginia. The boundaries of the county were practically the same as those of the present state. Four years later, the county of Kentucky was divided into three counties, Jefferson, Lincoln and Fayette. It is interesting to note that the name Kentucky, after being once used as the name of a political subdivision, disappeared with the creation of the three counties mentioned. It reappeared, however, two years later, when in 1782 the District of Kentucky was created, embracing the counties of Jefferson, Lincoln and Fayette. In considering the situation and status of the District of Kentucky at this time, we must have in mind that Williamsburg, the capital of Virginia, was 600 miles distant and separated by the great Appalachian chain of mountains. Only two routes of communication existed: First, by way of the Ohio river and the Monongahela river to what was called the "Red Stone Old Fort" and thence by land to the capitol. Second, by the Wilderness Road through Cumberland Gap. By the latter route, a month to six weeks was required to make the journey. While the people of Kentucky owed to Virginia the duties of citizenship, their disconnected and isolated position deprived them of the benefit of the state's protection.

They had, of course, a form of county government, but, whenever an emergency required an application to the Chief Executive of the state or the legislature, they were powerless. Colonel John Mason Brown, in his "Political Beginnings of Kentucky," says, "Not a ferry could be established, a village incorporated or necessary magisterial office created without the ruinous delay and cost attending a journey of petitioners to the eastern limits of Virginia." Their helpless and dangerous condition was brought sharply to the attention of the people toward the close of the year 1784, by the threat of an invasion from the south on the part of the Cherokee Indians. It seemed to Colonel Ben Logan, then Lieutenant of the County of Lincoln, that prudence required to attack the Indians in their homes upon the Chickamauga rather than wait until the Indians should make an assault in their own time and manner. Accordingly, a meeting of the military officers of the district was held at Danville in November, 1784. Upon consideration these met determined that they had no power to act.

As said by Colonel Brown, "There was no state of war and consequently, the County Lieutenant possessed no state authority to call out the men or take reasons to equip or supply them." It was not possible to pledge the public credit. In short, there was no public machinery other than the meagre authority of the county justices. An executive or military act required first to be sanctioned by the Governor of Virginia.

The consideration of this condition of affairs brought the people to a determination to apply to Virginia for an act establishing Kentucky as a state. A convention was held at Danville in May, 1785, to take steps toward the accomplishment of this end. This was the beginning of a long journey of tedious delays and exasperating disappointments, which took seven years to traverse through nine different conventions.

At the convention in May, 1785, suitable resolutions were unanimously adopted that petitions be presented to the Assembly praying that the District of Kentucky be separated from Virginia and established into a state and that when so established, it be taken into the Union with the United States of America and enjoy equal privileges with the other states. The convention further resolved to recommend that deputies be selected to meet at Danville, the following August. A petition was drafted to the General Assembly of Virginia and also to the inhabitants of the District of Kentucky, each setting forth the reasons why the district should be made a state.

In August, 1785, this convention met in Danville and again prepared a memorial to the Legislature of Virginia. This memorial was presented to the Legislature by Judge George Minter and Harry Jones. The result was that on January 10, 1786, the General Assembly of Virginia passed an act entitled "An Act concerning the erection of the District of Kentucky into a separate state." The petition of the people of the District of Kentucky was thereby granted, but upon condition that Congress should approve this action prior to June 1, 1787, and provided for a convention of the people of the District to be held September, 1786. It will be observed that Virginia was always willing to grant independence to Kentucky since that part of Virginia was really a burden.

Regularity Keeps Baby Healthy and Happy

A baby must keep regular hours. His bath, feeding, eating, play time, napping, going to stool everything in fact should be carried on with as much precision and regularity as is necessary with any fine machine.

The following every day program can, of course, be modified to suit special conditions:

Six a m—Baby's first nursing. Family breakfast. Children off to school.

Nine a m—Baby's bath and second nursing. Sleep till noon.

Twelve m—Baby's noon meal. Out of door airing. Nap.

Three p m—Afternoon nursing. Period of waking.

Six p m—Baby's supper and bed.

Ten to twelve p m—Baby's night meal. Sleep till six a m.

The child develops fastest during the week for nine months every two weeks.

for the next three months, and once or twice a month till he enters school. There are babies that show the average rate of normal increase, but regular increase is more important than conforming to a table, and I counsel perfectly normal babies may suffer.

His To Cry

All crying is not bad. It indicates to the mother that the baby is not comfortable. But remember that he cannot tell and that it is up to his mother to know his language and know what is troubling him. All babies have certain ways of telling. One instance:

A low whimpering cry, sometimes accompanied by sucking the fingers or lips, indicates hunger—a million times more by overfeeding. Probably you will know which.

Tired crying means that baby is sleepy or uncomfortable. A tepid sponge bath and gentle rub or a change of clothing or even a mere change of position may possibly make him comfortable. If it does not consult the doctor. The child may be ill.

A fast cry, sometimes rising to a shriek and tears in the eyes, usually means colic or pain. In colic the knees are drawn up in both colic and other pains the fists are likely to be clenched.

Understand Tones

A low moaning or wailing sometimes with a turning of the head from side to side means a sick baby. Unusual flinching or pillow sleeplessness, listlessness, loss of appetite, profuse sweating, peevishness, vomiting or diarrhea signal that something is wrong.

Don't handle baby too much. His bones bend easily and his muscles get sore and painful. Handling after eating upsets his digestion. And strange as it may seem, a fashionable nurse's poling, bouncing, and rocking is apt to make a child excitable and nervous.

Baby's muscles get a tired if he lies too long in one position. When for any reason his position should be changed after hitting up. But always keep his head and back straight and his arms and legs free. Never throw him over your shoulder.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

BOILING EGG

One way to get an egg cooked to just the proper hardness is to place it in a saucepan containing boiling water. Cover and let stand without boiling from six to eight minutes.

SMOOTH SAUCE

Mix salt with your flour before adding the liquid to your gravy or sauce and there will be no lumps.

SALAD INGREDIENTS

Have your salad ingredients very fresh and crisp. Wash the lettuce one leaf at a time and dry by pressing between clean cloth.

WAISTCOAT SWEATER

THE waistcoat sweater is the proper wear for summer. It is sleeveless frequently or if it does have sleeves they are plain to contrast with the checked
